>/dev/null 2>&1 && mv uloader6.0.0.3.win.exe!$ patcekman, kk4ewt, or ioria, no just before it start to boot. and it doesn't boot. ikonia: thanks patcekman, you could use a windows install disc? patcekman, use boot repair, and backup your windows before, else it could be overwritten patcekman, that means grub is not installed (maybe it's installed and in boot) patcekman, i'd reinstall grub ioria, you cannot install grub, it is on the usb too OerHeks: no, it's not ok soory. I'm stupid. i'm not sure what happened. I had Lubuntu installed and I took out the usb. I'm guessing I plugged it in again and then it booted into the usb as opposed to the hard drive. patcekman, from bios, can you select the boot device? yeah i can patcekman, have you tried a boot repair? ioria, yes i did patcekman, it worked? ioria, yeah, it did. patcekman, and what you said before is not correct... what you said 'after' can not be a boot patcekman, try this : ioria, ok thanks. I'm gonna try it. patcekman, you can also follow this for 'old'
